

Excerpt from Israel Bruna: An Historical Tragedy in Five Acts
Burgomaster Werner von Perinstein, several councillors, two guards standing at the door; later Pethahiah.
Burgomaster. - Men of the Council, I have called you together at this early hour on very important business. This morning a message was received from the King by special courier. His Majesty wishes us to give a hearty reception to brother Capistrano, who, the King says, has been gifted with miraculous powers, and who, the King says, is an instrument in the hands of Providence, to stamp out this heresy which has already disgraced his Majesty's dominions too long.
First Councillor. - We certainly ought to do our gracious Lords' wishes, all the more so because we will be honoring a great Saint whose presence will be a blessing to our city.
Second Councillor. - A blessing which will result in a bloody civil war.
First Coun. - Not if we stand united and have the support of the Saints' prayers.
Second Coun. - His prayer has not kept the Hussites from burning the city hall of Neustadt, when the council refused to expel that Italian trouble maker.
(Shouts.) - Bar the gates against the Welcher!
